About

My name is Jaime McQueen, along with my doctorate in Curriculum and Instruction; I have over 12 years of industry experience in science education, instructional technology, and research.

I have a passion for science education and using technology to design interactive curriculum which helps both educators and students achieve success.

My specialty is in science education at both high school and college levels. Additionally, I have a strong expertise in computer science and mathematics.

Whether you are looking for a single lesson, an entire semester of content, or ways to differentiate instruction for your learners; I offer helpful solutions!

Please feel free to view examples of my work on my website, or get in touch with me, I look forward to working with you!

Skills and Experience

From Advanced Placement to College Zoology, I have a solution for your Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) curriculum needs. My services are backed by my:
